THE FLASH LIGHT INVENTOR

Was a North Carolinian and is Still Living.

HIS HOME IN GUILFORD COUNTY

The System Formed the Basis Of That Now in Use By All The Navies of The World.

Now that the signal corps with our army and navy are brought prominently before the public by their effective service, it will be of interest to know that North Carolina furnished to the signal service of the Confederacy an officer who no doubt had a more varied experience, held positions of greater responsibility, and by his invention rendered greater service to that branch of the Confederate army than, perhaps, any other member of the same.

At the earnest solicitation of his friends Mr. J. B. Smith, of Rosedale Farm, in this, Guilford county, has consented to let the following sketch of his Confederate record, prepared for the N. C. C. V. Historical Association be published. It will also be of interest to mention the fact that the body of signal corps of which Mr. Smith was an officer, was composed of the pick of the Confederate youths, many of whom have distinguished themselves in the civil walks of life. Among them can be mentioned Sidney Lanier, the greatest of southern poets; J. Hoge Tyler, the present governor of Virginia, and Dr. George T. Goethals, the moderator of the Presbyterian General Assembly at Charlotte last year.

THE SKETCH.

Lieutenant John Baptist Smith, of the Confederate Signal Corps, the subject of this sketch, enlisted as a private in the 15th North Carolina on the 15th day of April, 1861, at the age of 17 years. He was identified with that company (Co. C. 13th regiment N. C. V.) until February, 1862, when, by order of the Secretary of War he was detached and subsequently transferred to the battalion of signal corps commanded by Maj. Jas. F. Milligan, and was made 1st sergeant of the 2nd company in that battalion, and placed in charge of the signal station on the south side of James River, opposite Newport News.

His first important service was rendered during the naval engagement at the mouth of James River in which the Confederate "ironclad" Virginia (Merrimack) destroyed the federal frigates Cumberland and Congress. When Norfolk was evacuated Sergeant Smith and his signal corps were ordered to Petersburg and placed in charge of the signal station on the Appomattox to watch the movement of the federal fleet and forces. This exposed position was held by him in spite of repeated efforts to capture the signal men and break up the station. Efficient service was also rendered during the seven days fight around Richmond and the retreat of McClelland's army to Harrison's Landing.

Soon after this series of engagements Sergeant Smith was sent by order of the Secretary of War to assist in organizing the civil service in the department of the Cape Fear, and was placed in charge of the most important station in this department—that of Fort Fisher, under Col. Wm. Lamb. Here he served with many testimonials of approbation from his commanding officer until the spring of 1863, when he invented the method of signalling by flash lights (white and red). This system, though since improved by the use of electric lights, formed the basis of the system that is now used in all navies of the world.

The system was first submitted by Sergeant Smith, with the approval of Col. Lamb, to General Whiting, who requested Commodore Lynch, commanding the naval forces in this department of the Cape Fear, to test the system. This officer ordered a special board of naval officers, presided over by Capt. Wilkinson, of the steamship R. E. Lee to investigate and report upon the value of the invention. This board, after subjecting it to a rigid test, unanimously approved it and recommended its adoption in the Confederate States Navy and on all Confederate blockade runners.

As a special compliment for this invention the secretary of war issued an order assigning Sergeant Smith for special duty with General Whiting, at Wilmington, who very kindly gave him choice of vessels upon which to serve as signal officer. He at once requested and was granted permission to serve on the Advance, because she belonged to his beloved State, under Capt. Thos. Crossan. He was identified with the thrilling history of this most famous blockade runner until February, 1864, when he was promoted to a lieutenant in the signal corps and ordered to report for duty at Petersburg. He was at once placed in command of the signal station on Lower James River, and established his headquarters at Hardy's Bluff, the lowest outpost of the Confederate army.

Here he witnessed the entry of Butler's fleet into the mouth of James river and transmitted minute reports of the number of gunboats and transports in the fleet to the Confederate authorities at Petersburg until the signal communication was broken up by the destruction of the station by the federals. Lieutenant Smith then withdrew his company of signal men to Surry court house and in a few days received orders to fall back to Petersburg where he arrived in time to take part in defending that city from the federal assaults until the arrival of Gen. Lee's army.

Lieutenant Smith and his company of brave signal men fought in the trenches as infantry for 48 hours without rations and held the angle assaulted as the center of attack by that distinguished general, Hancock, of the federal army.

As a compliment for this service, Lieutenant Smith was given command of the signal lines from General Beauregard's headquarters, and a few days later was ordered to report in person to General Lee and was placed in command of the signal lines running from his headquarters to the different points around Petersburg (perhaps the highest compliment bestowed on the C. S. army upon so youthful an officer.) This position was held by him until the campaign of 1864 closed, he was ordered to report to Commodore Pegram at Drewry's Bluff and take command of the signal lines connecting Drewry's Bluff with all the forts and batteries on James river; also with the fleet of ironclads in that river.

During the winter Lieutenant Smith was actively employed in bringing the signal service on James river up to a high state of efficiency, serving with Commodore Pegram until that officer was relieved by Commodore Semmes. Then with this distinguished officer until the opening of the campaign of 1865, when he was recalled to Petersburg and given his old command again, which was actively engaged day and night, previous to and during the evacuation of that city.

It is a historical fact that Lieutenant Smith's signal men were the last organized body of the Confederate army to leave that city. They crossed the railroad bridge at the foot of Dun's Hill, while it was on fire, after the Pocahontas and Campbell bridges had been destroyed. On the retreat from Petersburg Lieutenant Smith's company was the rear guard of General Lee's army until it was joined by the troops from Drewry's Bluff. Then Lieutenant Smith was ordered by General Lee to take charge of a body of prisoners with his company. Notwithstanding the confusion and repeated attempts to release these prisoners, they were safely guarded during the retreat until Appomattox courthouse was reached. Here they were marched out into the federal lines and Lieutenant Smith and his men were publicly thanked by the released prisoners for the kind treatment they had received at their hands.

Lieutenant Smith then procured paroles for his men direct from General Gibbons, General Grant's provost marshal, and then set out for his home in Caswell county, N. C. He arrived there on the 15th day of April, 1865, exactly four years from the day of his enlistment in the Confederate army.

The Actual Opening of Commerce With Santiago Has Begun—Hobson Returns to New York.

By Wire to THE TELEGRAM.

Santiago, July 23.—General Toral has notified his troops that on the 24th of July, in accordance with the terms of surrender the first division of the Spanish army will leave for Spain.

The Spanish trans-Atlantic line, which secured the contract for transporting the troops has notified General Toral that the ships in the West Indian waters will be sent to Santiago promptly. It is not expected however that the ships will arrive before tomorrow.

Orders have been issued directing a thorough cleaning of the city of Santiago. No provisions have yet reached the port, and there is great scarcity, with prices very high. The Red Cross is doing much good among the suffering classes.

In accordance with instructions from Washington only a minimum tariff will be imposed and it is believed that food will be cheaper in Santiago than ever, as soon as commerce is restored.

General Miles, prior to his departure for Porto Rico, sent a message to General Garcia, asking for fifty Cubans as guides during the campaign, Garcia had left as a result of his disagreement with General Shafter, and General Miles sent a message by a special messenger to hunt Garcia up. The result is not known.

DESPATCH FROM SHAFER.

Washington, July 23.—The following was posted by the war department this morning:

Santiago—Just in receipt of a letter from General Toral saying the Spanish secretary of war desires that troops be landed at Vigo Coruna, on the Atlantic, and also at Santanda, in the bay of Biscay.

[Signed] Shafter.

AN AMERICAN PORT.

New York, July 23.—The actual opening of commerce with Santiago as an open American port started this morning on the departure of the steamship Philadelphia, of the Ward line. The ship carries a full complement of passengers and much freight and is expected to reach Santiago next Monday.

Jacksonville, Fla., July 22.—The Third Regiment of Nebraska volunteers, in command of Colonel William Jennings Bryan, arrived in the city this morning on six special trains over the Plant System Railway.

"Is this your first experience with the military?" he was asked. "Yes," he replied, "but I have been making good use of my time studying up, and then my major and lieutenant colonel both have had a hand at fighting, and we shall get along."

"Are you out of politics now?" "Yes, for the time. Don't ask me to talk about politics; war predominates now."

Bryan's regiment will be encamped at Panama Park, five miles from the city.

AQUINALDO'S ORNAMENTS.

He is to Wear a Gold Collar and is Also to Have a Whistle.

London, July 23.—The Hong Kong correspondent of the Daily Mail says: "The latest mail from Manila reports that the rebels have suffered lately several reverses and have lost territory south of Malate. General Aguinaldo has issued an absurd proclamation dealing chiefly with official insignia. He, as president of the Philippine ministry, is to wear a gold collar, with a gold triangular pendant, engraved with the sun and three stars, and to carry a gold whistle, as well as a stick with a gold handle and a tassel of gold. The badges of innumerable other officials are minutely dealt with in the proclamation."

On steaming in they found the place guarded by three forts and the gunboat Jarge Juan. The vessels opened fire and met a response from the Spanish. After a sharp engagement the gunboat was demolished and the forts silenced. The forts fought bravely, but their gunnery was characteristic of the Spanish. None of our vessels were hit.

Argument has never yet been answered by ridicule. It may be answered by that method, but never answered. When this method is resorted to the honesty and sincerity of the motive behind it is at once brought into question.

Hon. R. Z. Linney was at the State Republican Convention. He says his district is in good condition. The little opposition that first bobbed up has about disappeared, and his majority promises to be larger than it was two years ago.—Home Rule.

From the above paragraph, we judge that old man Stamper, who bobbed up last week with a gun and ran a Linney henchman under cover, has put up his gun and disappeared in the woods.

It will be interesting to our readers to know that the inventor of the now famous flash light system of signalling lives in Guilford county. His name is John B. Smith and he now lives at Rosedale Farm, near Guilford College. Mr. Smith is a native of Caswell county, and entered the Confederate army at the age of 17 years. A complete history of his record in the Confederate army and his invention during that period of the flash light system, appears in this issue.

The appointment of a committee to investigate, and, if necessary, fill up an old, unused cistern near the Greensboro Sash and Blind Factory, is a step in the right direction. The duty of this committee should include some mud holes along South Elm street—notably the one along the C. F. & Y. V. railroad track at the junction of Fayetteville and South Elm. That place is a disgrace to a city the size of Greensboro, and is a blot on the record of the Sanitary officer. It is a nuisance and is declared so by all who travel that way, and should be abated at once.

The Brazilian government, from whom the Buffalo, late the Nietheroy, was recently purchased, called the other day on Uncle Samuel, saying that prompt payment for the cruiser was expected. This indicates that nations, as well as individuals, have "troubles of their own." Uncle Sam, however, caught up both sides of his split-tailed coat in his hands, placed one foot on a stump and looked at his Brazilian friend a moment in a "what-are-you-givin'-me" way, and quietly informed him that the canoe had already been paid for—that payment was made through the parties from whom he purchase was negotiated.

The Belief in Madrid.

London, July 23.—A special dispatch from Madrid says: "The arrival of Gen. Polavieja has increased the persistent talk of a cabinet crisis. The queen regent is credited with exclaiming: 'Thank God!' when she knew he was coming. Opinions differ as to whether a semi-military cabinet would make for peace or for a continuance of the war, but all are agreed that it would at any rate put an end to the present invertebrate policy."

"Certainly considerable confidence is felt in General Polavieja in the present policy."

"The belief is current in Madrid that the delay in Commodore Watson's starting is due to a desire to give General Polavieja time to form a cabinet and sue for peace."

Persons troubled with diarrhoea will be interested in the experience of Mr. W. M. Bush, clerk of Hotel Dorance, Providence, R. I. He says: "For several years I have been almost a constant sufferer from diarrhoea, the frequent attacks completely prostrated me and rendering me unfit for my duties at this hotel. About two years ago a traveling salesman kindly gave me a small bottle of Chamberlain's Colic, Cholera and Diarrhoea Remedy. Much to my surprise and delight its effects were immediate. Whenever I felt symptoms of the disease I fortified myself against the attack with a few doses of this valuable remedy. The result has been very satisfactory and almost complete relief from the affliction." For sale by C. E. Holton.

The opening of Spitzbergen as a summer resort has already been noted, but now comes the still more astounding intelligence that Siberia is starting a number of watering places to compete with the old-established "cures" of Germany and France. In the western portion of the Czar's Asiatic dominions Kwig and Obachof are recommended as possessing mineral springs of great medical value.

Electric Bitters.

Electric Bitters is a medicine suited for any season, but perhaps more generally needed when the languid, exhausted feeling prevails, when the liver is torpid and sluggish and the need of a tonic and alterative is felt. A prompt use of this medicine has often averted long and perhaps fatal bilious fevers. No medicine will act more surely in counteracting and freeing the system from the malarial poison. Headache, constipation, dizziness, yield to Electric Bitters. 50c. and $1.00 per bottle at C. E. Holton's drug store.

DESCENT OF LOVE.

Both man & woman had experience like this
(For poets sing a love which children mock,
And bliss of love therein is laughing stock.)

Their silly words make creed for common men?
Our life had long been dreamy holiday
Till when one even on the bleak highway,
I told her that I loved her, and she left
Her soul upon my lips, and thus we staid Beret of earth, and then—oh, strangest—
died

Down the bleak highway till the place's fear
Had closed his wings and left from following.
So here, within sound of her sweet singing,
This summer's day I fathom that dread time
And liken it—how up some desert peak
Sublime went ancient men and heard God speak
And won his law. But once they went, no more!
Yes, though God's dreams ran burning in their brain,
They hurried to the ways of humble men,
Nor prayed of him to visit them again!
—A. Boyd Scott in Black and White.

MAY BE THE MISSING LINK.

That Mysterious and Useless Organ of Man, the Vermiform Appendix.

A distinguished paleontologist claims to have discovered facts serving to show that the vermiform appendix, that mysteriously useless organ that has annoyed
the human family so much of late years, is no more nor less than the rudimentary remnant of the gizzard with which he believes the monstrous progenitors of man of the tertiary period
of the earth's existence were supplied.
Some of these gigantic creatures, lizards in form, birds in kind, animals in some functions, are believed to have developed by the gradual stages described by the supporters of the theory of evolution into the semblance of a human being.

If the bird form be the original of the human race, it is reasonable to believe that it may have been supplied with a gizzard, which in the bird of modern time possesses a definite and important function in the digestion of the food.
The bird having no teeth the food is in many cases swallowed whole. Some birds can crush the food with their beaks, but normally the digestion is permitted largely through the agency of the gizzard, where the food is ground into fine particles. The interior coating of this organ is rough and muscular.
Many birds swallow, as far as the gizzard, small pebbles that aid the process of attrition. Thus if the latest theory be correct a curious paradox is presented. Whereas in the beginning, as now, the gizzard performed its function
most satisfactorily when supplied with indigestible substances, its rudiment
that now remains in the human structure becomes a center of dangerous conditions as soon as any foreign substance, and especially any hard matter, is deposited in it.

One of the marvels of anatomy for some years has been this strange sac in the upper intestines, apparently without the least function in the digestive system and capable of being removed without affecting the health of the patient save to a favorable degree. Research has now revealed the presence of such rudiments in the human system.
Darwin's studies brought to light many resemblances between man and the lower orders. It may now be that the despised vermiform appendix will be exploited as the real "missing link"
binding man to the past ages, when life assumed many forms that are today unknown.—Washington Star.

Villagers' Idea of Hotel Business.

A young lawyer in one of the leading lake cities recently passed a few days at the home of his childhood, a rural hamlet in an adjoining county. While there he ran across one of the characters of the place, a quaint old man whom he had known ever since he could remember.

"How's business in town?" inquired
the aged man.

"Pretty good," replied the lawyer.

"What you doin' now?"

"Practicing law."

"What's your brother Jim doin'?"

"Jim is running a hotel," and he named one of the largest public houses
in the city.

"Is Jim married yet?"

"No."

The old man raised his head with a commiserating glance. Then he dryly observed:

"Has to de-pend on hired help, eh!"

Bernhardt and Loti.

Sarah Bernhardt recently said to a persistent newspaper correspondent: "I have told you everything. There is nothing that remains for me to say. You are as bad as Pierre Loti!"

"What on earth has Pierre Loti done
to you?" was the answer.

"Oh, simply that once upon a time
he made up his mind that he was going to make my acquaintance. First he wrote me a letter expressing his admiration for me, and did me the honor of dedicating a book to me. I thanked him, but I did not invite him to call on me."

Didn't Worry.

After three successive failures in a costly experiment, one of Mr. Edison's associates, worn out with the strain, asked, "Why don't you worry a little about it, Mr. Edison?"

"Why should I?" replied the inventor. "You are worrying enough for two."

Neither will a brain. If the Men who fail, and men who don't, often have what they call "Nervous Prostration."

Nine times in ten the nervous trouble is purely secondary.
The real sickness is in their digestion and in their blood. If a man keeps his digestion in good order, and keeps his body full of pure, rich blood,
he is never going to be very sick.

Johnston's Sarsaparilla is made for people who want to get well and stay well. Sarsaparilla is a simple, "grandmother" remedy, but it cures. It purifies and enriches the blood and sends it tingling to every part of the body. That is the way it cures all ailments of the brain and nerves—cures insomnia—cures dyspepsia, rheumatism, scrofula, and every other blood disease. It clears the complexion, plumps out the cheeks, and brings back the sparkle to lifeless eyes.

HE'S SMALL NOW.

But a Promising Aspirant for a Job
on the County Roads.

This morning Charlie Smith, a little colored boy, stole a bottle of ale from Rush Martin's restaurant, on South Elm street. Rush had just turned his back on the ale and quick as a flash
the little coon grabbed a bottled of Rush's hot weather beverage and began to drink it. He was caught by Rush and taken into the restaurant and asked which he had rather do—take a thrashing or be turned over to the police. The little "sly coon" decided on the former, and in less time than it takes to tell it the restaurant keeper was "beating his steak" with a board that would make excellent timber for barrel heads. Charles immediately brought his vocal organs into play and so deafened Rush that he ceased "fring."

This is the same dusky little coon who,
some time ago, stole some root beer
from Mr. Vuncannon, and it was only yesterday that he "swiped" a farmers'
lunch from his wagon.

He has been leading a wild career
and the police say when he gets large enough to handle a shovel he will do some good work for the county.

Whether or not he stops stealing it is safe to say that he will find fields as far from Rush Martin's restaurant as possible.
